True or False

Age/Level: Elementary and above  Time: 20 minutes  Players: Individual

Preparation: None

Aim: To ask and answer questions

This ESL game works well with small classes and is ideal for revising question forms.

Procedure

Ask the students if they are good at lying, and ask them what makes someone a good liar.

Explain that one student is going to leave the classroom. While that student is out of the room, the class has to think of three questions to ask the missing student. However, they need to be questions that no one knows the answers to.

When the class has come up with three questions, the missing student is brought back in.

The student has to answer two questions truthfully and lie about one.

After the three questions have been asked, everyone in the class has to say which answer they think was a lie.

The student then reveals the truth.

Each student who guessed correctly wins a point.

Repeat with another student and so on.

This game can be sped up by having the students come up with a list of 20 questions first.
