Introduction

Here is a fun vocabulary game for practicing parts of the body.

Procedure

You will need an odd number of students to play this game.

Ask all the students to find a partner. The student without a partner is the 'leader'.

The leader calls out different parts of the body for the students to connect with their partner, e.g. 'hand to hand', 'knee to elbow', etc.

The pairs listen and follow the leader's commands.

If the leader is having problems thinking of parts of the body, feel free to get them to repeat after you.

After a few commands have been called out, the leader says, "People to people."

Everyone then has to find a new partner (including the leader).

The odd student left out becomes the new leader and so on.
