Introduction

In this visiting the dentist worksheet, students learn and practice vocabulary associated with going to the dentist.

Procedure

Give each student a copy of the two-page worksheet.

First, students read a text about a visit to the dentist.

Next, students answer comprehension questions about the text in their own words.

Exercise B - Answer key (some answers may vary)

1. He had been suffering from a toothache.
2. He felt nervous. / He had butterflies in his stomach.
3. He brushes three times a day with special toothpaste and an electric toothbrush, flosses every evening, uses mouthwash regularly, and hardly ever eats sugary snacks.
4. He couldn't tell him because he had his hands (two enormous rubber fingers) in his mouth.
5. He needed a filling because he had a cavity.
6. He used a drill to fill the cavity.
7. She told him to spit (into the small tray beside the chair).

Lastly, students complete sentences about dental health so that they are true for them. Students then compare their answers with a partner and discuss the similarities and differences.

A. Read the text about Jim's visit to the dentist.

I have never enjoyed visiting the dentist, so I try my very best to do so as infrequently as possible. Unfortunately, I'd been suffering from a painful toothache for a few weeks and knew something had to be done. So, I finally made an appointment, and here I was. As I sat in the waiting room, I had butterflies in my stomach. I was so busy thinking about what was going to happen to me, that when I finally heard my name being called, I nearly fell off my chair.

I got up and walked slowly towards the examination room which was full of lights and strange equipment. Mary, the hygienist, greeted me with a smile and told me to sit down in the big green chair. She put a bib around my neck, took an x-ray of my mouth, and said, "Doctor Jaws will be with you in a second." She then started playing around with some of the scary machines next to the chair while I waited patiently for the fun to begin.

Suddenly Doctor Jaws appeared. "Hello Jim. It's been a while, hasn't it? I hear you've got a toothache. Let's see what the problem is." He said, "Open wide." I opened my mouth and felt like a small child as he said, "Oh dear. I see someone hasn't been looking after their teeth properly." I tried to explain that I brush three times a day with special toothpaste and an electric toothbrush, floss every evening, use mouthwash regularly, and hardly ever eat sugary snacks. But this was not easy to do with two enormous rubber fingers in my mouth inspecting my teeth with some worryingly sharp metal tools.

"I'm afraid you've got another cavity Jim.", Doctor Jaws told me. "The good news is that I have time to give you a filling today." Before I could say anything, I saw Mary pass him a long needle which he quickly plunged into my gum. After a few seconds, I couldn't feel anything. My mouth was completely numb. Doctor Jaws then turned on his noisy drill and got to work on my mouth. It wasn't painful, but it certainly wasn't comfortable. Finally, the drilling stopped, and Mary started to clean my teeth. At least that part was quieter than the drilling. When it was all over, she gave me a cup of water and told me to spit into the small tray beside the chair.

A few minutes later, I was paying the receptionist, preparing to make my escape, and not come back for at least another year. Just when I thought I was safe, Doctor Jaws appeared in the doorway and said, "By the way Jim, I noticed your teeth are a bit crooked. I think you need braces. Come back and see me next week." My mouth was still too numb for me to reply, so I simply nodded my head and let the receptionist make another appointment for me.

B. Answer the questions about the text in your own words.

1. Why was Jim visiting the dentist?
2. How did he feel while he was waiting?
3. What are two things Jim does to look after his teeth?
