Introduction

In this subject and object pronouns activity, students answer questions by finding the correct response on a worksheet and completing it with the appropriate subject or object pronoun.

Procedure

Divide the students into pairs (A and B).

Give each student a corresponding worksheet.

Tell the students to keep their worksheets secret until the end of the activity.

Explain that the students are going to listen to their partner's questions and reply by finding the correct responses on the worksheet and completing them with the correct subject or object pronouns.

Student A begins by asking their questions first.

Student B listens to each question and tries to find the correct response on the worksheet.

When Student B finds the correct response, they complete the answer with the appropriate subject or object pronoun and read it to Student A.

If Student A agrees the answer is correct, they write the response in the space next to the question.

If Student A thinks an answer is wrong, they ask Student B to try again.

When all the questions have been answered, the students swap roles.

When everyone has finished, go through the correct answers with the class by having students read out their responses.
