Introduction

In this fun likes and dislikes activity, students create dating profiles and then match people together, according to their preferences.

Procedure

Divide the students into pairs.

Check that the students understand the concept of a dating agency and review language for expressing likes and dislikes.

Give half the pairs a set of six male cards and the other half a set of six female cards.

Tell the students to look at the pictures on the cards and fill in each profile with information about that person's likes and dislikes.

When the students have finished, each pair joins up with another pair that has an opposite set of cards, so one pair should have male cards and the other should have female cards.

Explain that the students run a dating agency called Cupid's.

Their task is to match the clients on the cards together for a date, according to their preferences.

The pairs then take it in turns to read out each profile to the other pair.

The students discuss the profiles and match the people together, according to their likes and dislikes.

Students should try to pair up all the men and women if possible and think of reasons for their choices.

Afterwards, each group tells the class about their most promising dates and feedback is given.
