Introduction
Here is a future tense board game to get your students talking about the future using the present continuous, be going to, will, won't and would like to.

Procedure
Explain that the students are going to play a board game where they talk about various topics for 30 seconds using different future forms.

Divide the students into groups of three or four.

Give each group a copy of the game board, a dice and counters.

Have one student keep the time in each group.

Students place their counters on the start square.

Students then take it in turns to roll the dice and move their counter along the board.

When a student lands on a square, they have to talk about the topic on the square for 30 seconds using the correct future form.

If a student can’t think of anything to say, makes a grammar mistake, or stops talking before the 30 seconds are up, they must go back to their previous square.

The first student to reach the finish wins the game.

As an alternative, you could have the students miss a turn instead of going back to their previous square.
