Introduction

In this 'used to' board game, students practice 'used to' and the past simple by discussing and answering questions about childhood memories. It is ideal for teenagers and adults. This game also provides students with a great opportunity to practice building a conversation about growing up.

Procedure

Divide the class into groups of three or four.

Give each group a copy of the game board, a dice and counters.

The students place their counters on the start square. The first student to throw a six starts the game.

The players then take it in turns to roll the dice and move their counter along the board.

When a player lands on a square, the student on their right asks the player the question on the square about their experience of growing up.

The player then uses 'used to' and the past simple to answer the question.

The group then explores the topic by asking follow-up questions and giving comments.

The first student to reach the finish square wins the game.
