Introduction

In this obligation and prohibition activity, students play a game where they guess jobs from clues that contain expressions of obligation and prohibition (must, mustn't, have to, don't have to).

Procedure

Explain that the students are going to guess jobs from clues.

Tell the students that there are six clues for each job. The first clue is quite difficult and the last clue is very easy. As the clues get easier, the correct answer is worth fewer points.

Demonstrate the activity by reading out the clues below one at a time. After you have read out a clue, elicit a possible job.

Clues

1. You must be very responsible. (6 pts)
2. You must wear a uniform. (5 pts)
3. You have to have a lot of training. (4 pts)
4. You have to travel very far. (3 pts)
5. You must take your passport to work. (2 pts)
6. You have to sit in the cockpit of an airplane. (1 pt)

Answer: pilot

Next, divide the students into pairs.

Give each pair a set of face down cards. Ask the students to shuffle the cards and place them in a pile on the desk, without looking at them.

One student goes first and picks up the top card from the pile. The student then reads out the first clue on the card to their partner.

Their partner listens to the clue and guesses what the job could be.

If the guess is incorrect, the student reads the next clue and so on.

If their partner correctly guesses the job, he or she gets the number of points indicated next to the clue.

The two students then swap roles. This continues until all the cards have been used. The student with the most points at the end of the game wins.

Afterwards, ask each pair to think of a job and create their own clues using expressions of obligation and prohibition. The pairs then read their clues to the class for them to guess.
