Introduction
In this fun activity, students play a game where they ask 'Is/Are there...?' questions in order to find out where they are.

Procedure
Divide the class into groups of eight.

Give each student a copy of the question card.

Go through how to form questions with 'Is/Are there...?'

Tell the students that you are going to stick a picture on each student's back. Explain that the picture shows where the student is.

The students' task is to ask questions in order to find out what place is stuck on their back.

Ask the students to complete the eight 'Is/Are there...?' questions on the card. Explain that the questions should help them decide where they are.

When the students have finished writing, stick a picture on each student's back.

Next, divide each group into four pairs.

Each student looks at the picture on their partner's back.

The students then take it in turns to ask the questions on their card to their partner to find out where they are.

The students listen to their partner's answers and mark them on the card.

When the students have asked all the questions, they write where they think they are at the bottom of the card.

The students then see if they were right or wrong by taking the picture off their back.

As an extension, redistribute the pictures and have the students repeat the activity with a new partner.
